Student Code of Conduct

1 Principles

Northbridge Polytechnic expects students to act with honesty, respect and responsibility, on campus, during internships and overseas programmes, and online when they can be identified as Northbridge students.

2 Dress and Behaviour on Campus

Students should dress neatly and appropriately for a learning environment. Laboratory and workshop sessions require covered shoes and any protective equipment listed in the safety briefing; students without them will not be allowed to take part.

Smoking and vaping are prohibited everywhere on campus, including car parks. Eating is not allowed in lecture theatres, laboratories or the library, except in designated cafe areas.

3 Harassment and Bullying

Harassment, bullying and discrimination of any kind, in person or online, will not be tolerated. This includes sharing images of another person without consent, repeated unwanted messages and offensive remarks about race, religion, gender or disability.

Students who experience or witness harassment can report it to any lecturer, to Student Services, or anonymously through the Speak Up form on the Student Portal. Reports are handled confidentially and the person making a report in good faith will not be penalised.

4 Disciplinary Process

Minor breaches of this code, such as eating in the library, are dealt with by the staff member on the spot and may lead to a verbal or written warning.

Serious or repeated breaches are referred to the Disciplinary Committee. The student is told of the allegation in writing and is given at least five working days to prepare a written response before the hearing. The student may bring one support person, who may not speak on the student's behalf.

The Committee may impose one or more of the following sanctions:

- A written reprimand placed on the student's record.
- Community service of up to 40 hours.
- Suspension from the polytechnic for up to one semester.
- Expulsion, for the most serious cases.

5 Appeal against a Disciplinary Decision

A student may appeal against a decision of the Disciplinary Committee to the Deputy Principal within ten working days after receiving the decision in writing. The appeal must state the grounds, such as new evidence or a failure to follow the process. The decision of the Deputy Principal is final.
